Acclaimed as one of the world’s top youth ensembles, the National Symphony Orchestra of Romania has made a name for itself in recent years as Romania’s best and brightest orchestra. Touring regularly at leading venues throughout Europe, it has earned a reputation for delivering performances at the highest level characterized by virtuosity, abandon, joy and drama. The orchestra’s concerts at the Romanian Athenaeum and the George Enescu International Festival are regularly sold out, and international tours have brought them to the Gustav Mahler International Festival, Ravello International Festival, Vienna Konzerthaus, Berlin Konzerthaus, Grande Theatre de Provence in Aix-en-Provence. Forthcoming tours will see them perform in France including for their debut at the Philharmonie de Paris and to Germany, Spain, Brussels and Austria.

The mission of the National Symphony Orchestra of Romania is to “attract the brightest Romanian musicians between the ages of 18-35 to create a unique creative experience in the common pursuit of musical excellence.” The orchestra’s roots lay in a unique artistic and educational program, which was founded in 2008 following an initiative by cellist Marin Cazacu with the support of the Friends of Music from the Serafim Antropov Foundation. The orchestra’s academic program strives to offer young musicians the opportunity to explore demanding repertoire through master classes and concerts, and more importantly, to participate in the joy of music-making under esteemed conductors such as Lawrence Foster, Kristjan Järvi and Cristian Măcelaru and with leading soloists including Pinchas Zukerman, Sarah Chang, David Garrett, Elizabeth Leonskaja and Andrei Ioniță.

This tour honors the 100th anniversary of the unification of Romania and Transylvania in their first-ever tour to the United States, led by renowned conductor Cristian Măcelaru.

CRISTIAN MĂCELARU
Conductor

Newly appointed chief conductor designate of the WDR Sinfonieorchester, Cristian Măcelaru is one of the fast-rising stars of the conducting world. He takes on this new position at WDR, one of Europe’s leading orchestras, effective with the 2019/20 season.

Măcelaru is music director and conductor of the internationally renowned Cabrillo Festival of Contemporary Music. In 2018, he led his second season in premiere-filled programs of new works by an esteemed group of composers. Among the 2018 season’s highlights were three world premieres, a record-breaking 16 composers-in-residence, a stunning roster of international guest artists, and two special tributes to commemorate William Bolcom’s and John Corigliano’s respective 80th birthdays.

Cristian Măcelaru attracted international attention for the first time in 2012, when he stepped into the breach with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, deputizing for Pierre Boulez. In the same year, he received the Solti Emerging Conductor Award for young conductors, followed in 2014 by the Solti Conducting Award. Since then, he has performed regularly at the podium of the best American orchestras, including the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, New York Philharmonic, Los Angeles Philharmonic, Cleveland Orchestra, St. Louis Symphony and National Symphony Orchestra. A particularly close collaboration connects him with the Philadelphia Orchestra: since his subscription debut in 2013, he has been on the podium of this orchestra over 100 times and served there for three seasons as conductor-in-residence. Prior to that, he was their associate conductor for two seasons and previously assistant conductor for one season from September 2011. He continues a close relationship with the orchestra in leading them on annual subscription programs and other special concerts.

In Europe, Măcelaru has been in great demand as a guest conductor with many well-known orchestras and festivals, among others the Bayerischen Rundfunk Symphonieorchester, Royal Concertgebouw Orchestra, Dresden Staatskapelle, Leipzig Gewandhausorchester, City of Birmingham Symphony Orchestra, Rotterdam Philharmonic Orchestra, Orchestre Philharmonique de Radio France and Danish National Symphony Orchestra.

The 2018/19 season sees Măcelaru make debuts with the Orchestre National de France, Vienna Radio Symphony Orchestra, Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, BBC Symphony, San Francisco Symphony and São Paulo Symphony Orchestra (OSESP). He returns to the Royal Concertgebouw Orchestra, Bayerischen Rundfunk Symphonieorchester, City of Birmingham Symphony, Deutsches Symphonie-Orchester Berlin, Dresden Philharmonie, Hallé Orchestra, Philadelphia Orchestra, St. Louis Symphony, Baltimore Symphony and Detroit Symphony. This January, he brings the National Symphony Orchestra of Romania on their first-ever tour to the United States in commemoration of Romania’s centennial, culminating a 7-city tour – including East Lansing – at New York’s Jazz at Lincoln Center in performances with Wynton Marsalis and the Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra. On the opera front, he leads a Kasper Holten production of Don Giovanni at the Houston Grand Opera.

Cristian Măcelaru was born in Timișoara, Romania and comes from a musical family. As the youngest of ten children, he received instrumental lessons at an early age, like all his siblings; in his case, on the violin. His studies took him from Romania to Interlochen Arts Academy in northern Michigan, University of Miami in Florida and Rice University in Houston, where he studied conducting with Larry Rachleff. He then deepened his knowledge in Tanglewood Music Center and Aspen Music Festival in masterclasses with David Zinman, Rafael Frühbeck de Burgos, Oliver Knussen and Stefan Asbury.

Măcelaru was the youngest concertmaster in the history of the Miami Symphony Orchestra and made his Carnegie Hall debut with that orchestra at the age of 19. He also played in the first violin section of the Houston Symphony for two seasons.

He resides in Philadelphia with his wife, Cheryl, and children, Beniamin and Maria.

PROGRAM NOTES

Romanian Rhapsody No. 1 in A Major, Op. 11
GEORGE ENESCU
Born August 19, 1881, in Liveni, Romania
Died May 4, 1955, in Paris, France

George Enescu was a Romanian composer, violinist, pianist, and professor of music. At the age of 7, he was admitted to the Vienna Conservatory, even though the minimum age was 14. He undertook further studies at the Paris Conservatory. He worked in Paris for most of his adult life; there, he taught many of the best violinists of the time. His piano technique was also formidable. He became a renowned orchestral conductor and made several tours of Europe and the United States. Enescu was hailed as one of the most well-rounded musicians of the 20th century.

Enescu heard gypsy music when he was very young, and his first experiments with the violin involved playing some of those melodies. The two Romanian Rhapsodies make use of the folk and gypsy music of his youth. They were written in 1901, when he was only 20 years old. The first Rhapsody is especially rich in folk or folk-inspired melodies, developed in elaborate settings. These two successful pieces overshadowed much of his later work in popularity and gave rise to the misleading conception that he was a folklorist. A partial list of his other compositions includes five symphonies, an opera, art songs and song cycles, plus chamber music for various instruments. He founded two orchestras in addition to his work as conductor and soloist. Truly a man of vast talent, Enescu valued his time as a composer above all other endeavors.

The Romanian Rhapsody No. 1 in A major, Opus 11, is dedicated to fellow composer, professor, and Paris Conservatory alumnus Bernard Crocé-Spinelli (1871-1932). The orchestra includes three flutes, (one doubling on piccolo), two oboes, English horn, two clarinets, two bassoons, four French horns, two trumpets, two cornets, three trombones, tuba, three timpani, other percussion, two harps, and a full string section. Enescu also prepared a reduced score for violin and piano, which allowed the work to be played as chamber music. The entire piece is an exercise in vitality and intensity. Most themes are first announced in the woodwinds and/or violins, but every section of the orchestra has important solo passages as well as rhythmic functions. The opening measures, which are based on a Romanian folksong, are a duet between clarinets and oboes, which is then taken up by the strings. Numerous themes are then developed by the full orchestra. There are occasional quiet passages but most of the Rhapsody is high in volume and energy. A variety of dance rhythms and melodic modes typical of Enescu’s home region are employed. Accidentals, ornaments, chromatic passages, glissando passages in harps and strings give an especially vivacious character to the Rhapsody.
Pyotr Ilyich Tchaikovsky wrote his Variations on a Rococo Theme in A major, Op. 33, for Cello and Orchestra, between December 1876 and January 1877. He dedicated it to friend and Moscow Conservatory professor Wilhelm Fitzenhagen, a renowned German cellist, who gave the premiere in 1877. Fitzenhagen later made numerous aggressive changes to the work, including dropping and rearranging movements. His arrangement was published in 1889. Tchaikovsky declined to correct the edition, so the Fitzenhagen score remained the sole published representation of the work until 1956, when Tchaikovsky’s original composition was included in his complete works edition. The first modern performance of the original version occurred in Russia in 1941.

Tchaikovsky was enamored of Mozart, and this piece is often thought to display “nostalgia for Mozart.” Rococo, also known as “style galant,” was a late-Baroque style featuring intensely decorated melodies and gentle sentiments; art and architecture had adopted the style slightly earlier and made it a popular bridge between the elaborate Baroque and the more refined Classical eras.

Tchaikovsky was such a gifted melodist that he easily created a melody and harmony that could have come from the mid-17th-century Rococo era, which he then set for cello and orchestra. The cello theme is an easily recognizable, memorable tune. The work is in ten movements, consisting of an introduction, thematic statement and eight variations, with connecting passages between them. The movements are of varying lengths and moods, with numbers one, three and seven being lyrical and the others vivacious, humorous or virtuosic. The tempo changes, modes, moods, cadenzas, and rhythmic variations create a masterpiece for solo cello and orchestra.

Suite from Der Rosenkavalier, Op. 59
RICHARD STRAUSS
Born June 11, 1864, in Munich, Germany
Died September 8, 1949, in West Germany

Richard Strauss completed sixteen operas over a period of 49 years. Der Rosenkavalier (The Rose-Bearer) is the fifth and most famous of the operas. It was written in 1909 and 1910 and premiered in Dresden’s Semper Opera House in 1911. The libretto is by Hugo von Hoffmannsthal (1874-1929), with whom Strauss often worked. The opera was billed by Strauss as a “comedy with music.” The story line is the familiar saga of a mature woman (the Marschallin) in a loveless marriage. She has a dalliance with a younger man (Octavian), but decides to save a young woman (Sophie) from a similar marriage to the Marshallin’s own cousin (Baron Ochs). After several complications, the Marschallin asks Octavian to deliver to Sophie the silver rose which Ochs has chosen... as his engagement gift (the gift was traditionally not presented by the prospective bridegroom but by someone acting on his behalf). The Marschallin predicts Octavian and Sophie will fall in love, as they do. Ochs is ultimately discredited and departs. The Marschallin poignantly recalls young love, and the young couple sing rapturously of their love for each other.

The music of these various plots and subplots is by turns dramatic, erotic, wistful, warm, tender, bumptious, and always sumptuous. The opening theme of the Suite is based on the opera’s overture, which depicts the night of love between the Marshallin and Octavian. Next comes the beautiful “Rosenkavalier” theme as Octavian, dressed in full court regalia, arrives to present the silver rose to Och’s fiancée Sophie. Sophie and Octavian begin to fall in love, in an aria represented in the Suite by oboe and French horn. This is interrupted by the arrival of Ochs, with pomposity, jocularity, and a memorable waltz tune. Once the disruption of his arrival is past, the strings return to a more wistful refrain as the Marschallin concedes Octavian’s love for Sophie. The young lovers join in a rapturous duet, clearly expressed in the orchestra. A rousing ending depicts the departure of Ochs as the lovers happily exchange their pledges.

Strauss apparently never extracted music from the opera himself; many others did. The arrangement Strauss approved is officially anonymous but is most likely by the conductor Artur Rodzinski. This Suite was first performed in 1944 and published in 1945. It has played a major role in popularizing the beautiful music of Der Rosenkavalier.

Boléro
MAURICE RAVEL
Born March 7, 1875, in Ciboure, France
Died December 28, 1937, in Paris, France

Maurice Ravel was something of a child prodigy. He was born into a musical family: his father was an engineer, a gifted amateur musician and a prize-winning pianist. Maurice began piano lessons at age 7, harmony at age 11, and entered the Paris Conservatory at age 14. At 16, he won the piano prize and he completed his studies at the age of 20. He returned to the conservatory a few years later to study with Gabriel Fauré, who became a close friend despite their 30-year age difference. Ravel made his early career as a composer, but later was more active as a conductor and pianist. In 1928, he was commissioned to compose a “Spanish” ballet by prima ballerina Ida Rubinstein, a star in Sergei Diaghilev’s famous Ballet Russes in Paris. The result was Boléro, which Rubinstein premiered in November of that year. The choreography called for one female and twenty male dancers.

Composers had been fascinated with Spanish themes for over a century. The distinct rhythmic, melodic and harmonic characteristics of Spain (sometimes real, sometimes mythical) were highly appreciated by audiences as well as composers. In this orchestral work, Ravel used the traditional bolero dance form from the regions of Andalusia and Castile, which features a moderate tempo, a strong triple meter and a repetitive, hypnotic rhythm. Ravel was not the first to employ this dance form; such diverse composers as Berlioz, Chopin and Weber had also used it. Ravel’s unusual orchestration and unvarying melodies distinguished his composition.

_Boléro_ begins with a duet between the flute and the snare drum, accompanied by pizzicato violas and cellos. The snare drum pattern remains unchanged throughout the entire piece. The cellos also maintain their emphasis on the first and third beats, with an eighth-note pattern in every other measure. There are two melodic phrases, each sixteen measures long, with nine repetitions of the paired themes. Two-measure interludes connect the repetitions. The melodies do not vary, no matter which instruments play them, and the harmony is unaltered except for a brief few measures near the end of the piece. This somewhat static quality of harmony, melody and rhythm is never dull, however, as each statement of a melodic phrase appears successively in a different instrument. The accompanying ensemble also changes with each repetition. The intensity and volume build continually. The score calls for two flutes (one doubling piccolo), two oboes, English horn, three clarinets, two bassoons, contrabassoon, four French horns, three trumpets, three trombones, tuba, three saxophones, percussion, celeste, harp, and strings. The final repetition has half the orchestra playing the themes in octaves while the other half plays the accompanying rhythm and harmony. The work is a tour de force of orchestration, focusing on a single rhythmic pattern to the exclusion of variations or development. It has delighted and fascinated audiences for decades and shows no sign of declining popularity.

COLLABORATORS:

TONY BENNETT’s life and philosophy is the embodiment of the Great American Story. His career as the pre-eminent singer of the 20th and 21st centuries is unprecedented. He continues to be embraced and loved by audiences of all generations. Born in Queens, NY, in 1926, Mr. Bennett served in the Army during World War II and marched with Martin Luther King, Jr. in Selma during the Civil Rights Movement; he was honored by the United Nations for his humanitarian efforts and ideals. As a musical performer, he has received 19 Grammy Awards, is a Kennedy Center Honoree and an NEA Jazz Master and, in 2017, became the first interpretive singer to receive The Gershwin Prize from the Library of Congress. With his wife, Susan, he established Exploring the Arts to support arts education in public high schools. Tony Bennett is also an accomplished painter whose passion for the visual arts began as a child growing up in Astoria, Queens, and has flourished throughout his life. Painting under his given name, Anthony Benedetto, he has three paintings in the permanent collection of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.; he has exhibited his artwork in museums and galleries throughout the world. Whether performing in concert for sold-out audiences or painting in his art studio in New York City, Tony Bennett has used his exceptional creative talents to search for “truth and beauty” in his artistry.

MORIAH BLACK (Costume Designer) is the clothing designer behind ren6; an ethical clothing concept specializing in one-of-a-kind garments made from recycled clothing. Like paintings, her pieces are made in the technique or style alluding to décollage. Using a synchronistic application of fabric, her aesthetic reflects culture and current affairs, much like the city walls she reveres. She studied at Central Saint Martins in London and earned her BFA from Parsons the New School for Design.

HAYAT DOMINQUEZ (Sound Design/Engineer) originally from Kansas, is a 2nd-year graduate student studying audio at the University of Illinois. She’s had the pleasure of working in South Dakota, Colorado, and New Mexico with companies such as the Denver Center for the Performing Arts and the Santa Fe Opera. Hayat worked with Jessica Lang with sound design and engineering as a part of a creative process that is unique to the Krannert Center for Performing Arts residency at University of Illinois Urbana/Champaign. After graduating, Hayat plans to move to Colorado to freelance in sound design. ANJA HOSE (Projections Design/Engineer) greatly enjoyed the chance to collaborate with Jessica Lang Dance and José Parla on us/we. Her passion has always been for dance, but in recent years she has designed operatic productions with Lyric @ Illinois, including Don Giovanni, Hansel and Gretel, and The Light in the Piazza. Originally from beautiful Boulder, CO, she is currently finishing her MFA in media design at the University of Illinois.

BRADON MCDONALD (Costume Designer) is a dancer turned designer; he has had a diverse career in the performing and visual arts. A graduate of Juilliard, he performed with Mark Morris Dance Group for a decade, and also with the Limon Dance Company. Upon retiring from the stage, he returned to the Fashion Institute of Design and Merchandising Los Angeles where he earned two fashion design degrees. After his success on the Emmy Award-winning Project Runway Season 12, he has been creating custom garments for private clients, designing stage costumes for dance and opera productions including ABT, PNB, and LA Opera, and has a dancewear collection: Bradon X Capezio.

JOSÉ PARLÁ (Artist) is a critically acclaimed, multidisciplinary artist in painting, large-scale murals, photography, video and sculpture. Layers of paint, gestural drawing and found ephemera combine to evoke the histories of urban environments. Using the backdrop of world cities, he creates abstractions that can appear to be photorealistic fragments of what he sees in the chaos and rush of the metropolis. His work reflects the ephemeral layers of walls that show a place that was, but no longer is: built over, renewed in some other configuration, in the present, engaging memory and imagination with the contemporary.

His work has been exhibited at the High Museum of Art, Atlanta, GA; The SCAD Museum of Art, Savannah College of Art & Design, GA; The Neuberger Museum of Art, Purchase, NY; National YoungArts Foundation, Miami, FL; Van Every/Smith Galleries, Davidson College, NC; and The Havana Biennial, Havana, Cuba, among others. Parlá’s work is in several public collections including, The British Museum, London, U.K.; The Albright-Knox Art Gallery, Buffalo, NY; POLA Museum of Art, Hakone, Japan; and The National Museum of Fine Arts, Havana, Cuba. Collaborative projects include the 11th Havana Biennial with Wrinkles of the City: Havana, Cuba project, which was completed in 2012 between Parlá and French artist JR. Parlá also worked with the Caldera Arts Program at The Portland Art Museum, where he collaborated with participating youth for his Signature Roots workshop and installation.

Permanent public arts projects include commissions by ONE World Trade Center; the University of Texas at Austin; the Barclays Center in Brooklyn; Brooklyn Academy of Music; BAM Fisher; North Carolina State University’s Hunt Library by Snøhetta; and at Concord City Place, Toronto, Canada.

Wharton Center gratefully thanks those who have chosen to remember and support the performing arts through a charitable bequest in their estate plans.

With thoughtful and creative estate planning, you can provide future support to Wharton Center for Performing Arts. We invite and encourage you to contact the Development Office at (517) 353-4640 to explore estate planning strategies.
Endowments provide a foundation of stability and support. Gifts to endowments are made with the understanding that the principal is continually preserved and the total amount of the gift is invested. Each year, only a portion of the interest earned is spent while the remainder reverts to principal. In this respect, an endowment is a perpetual gift.

Wharton Center gratefully acknowledges those individuals/organizations that have funded named endowments through gifts of cash or their estate plans.
